Ogonna, 18, from Nigeria, plans to study Economics at the University of Surrey.

"As an international student, I needed another qualification to enter university in the UK. I wanted a one-year programme to learn more about Economics. Subjects are taught differently here compared with Nigeria – I now have a more practical understanding and have learnt how to sit exams.

My IELTS score increased from 6 to 7.5 and I am now able to write essays better. I have more vocabulary and self-confidence, and can speak in front of anybody because of the presentations we did.

Bell also really helped with writing my personal statement and choosing a university."

Course components

The University Foundation Programme is a comprehensive one-year course, focusing on three specific areas of learning to help you gain entry to university:
